Farm Credit Officers Assess Future

Officers of the Lynchburg, Farmville and South Hill Farm Credit Offices met this week in Norfolk, Va. with their counterparts throughout the Baltimore District of the Farm Credit System to assess the outlook for agricultural financing.

Managers, loan officers, and their families from Virignia, Maryland, Pennsylvania, Delaware, West Virginia and Puerto Rico focused on the role of cooperatives with the theme, "Cooperatives, Free Enterprise with a Difference".

The Farm Credit Banks of Baltimore, of which the Lynchburg Office is a part, are cooperatives and part of the largest financial cooperative in the world.

Gene McNabb, Manager of the Lynchburg Office, heard National Farm Credit Governor, Donald E. Wilkinson, outline the expected massive increase in farm credit demand in the future. Already larger than the World Bank and the International Monetary Fund, the Farm Credit System, with loans outstanding of forty billion dollars, expects to reach one hundred billion dollars in ten years, according to Wilkinson.

The Lynchburg Office, which serves farmers in Amherst, Appomattox and Campbell Counties, is part of the Farmville Association which presently has loans outstanding totalling 47,305,000 dollars.

McNabb said he expects farm credit demands in the Lynchburg area to keep pace with the sharp rise expected nationally. He cited the ever increasing costs of farm inputs and rising land values as the main forces behind the increased demend for farm credit.
